First responders see, hear and experience things no one should ever have to. Today, this dive team and search crew worked to find the final person missing from Monday's plane crash near Galveston. They accomplished their mission, by finding the worst thing someone could find. In total, they recovered six deceased victims, including a young child. I think I can speak for all of us when I say we're thankful for the men and women who put others before themselves every single day.
